

Dear Manufacturing Professional,

How would you like to sit down with a senior-level engineer and discuss new technologies that will help you increase productivity, decrease network downtime, and reduce your operational expenses?

At iCorps, we understand that it can be tough to make sure your IT is keeping up with your business. We also understand the challenges unique to your industry: you need efficient, easy-to-use supply chain management systems, reliable communication between departments, and secure networks with robust remote access capabilities.

We've got years of experience helping companies just like yours get the most out of their technology.

A pioneer in comprehensive IT outsourcing, iCorps offers a variety of solutions to help you increase productivity and profits and eliminate IT-related headaches. We've been managing the technology assets of manufacturing and distribution companies throughout the Northeast for more than a dozen years, and we're committed to delivering both the vision and the resources you need to stay competitive.

To get you started, we're offering a free one-on-one consultation with a senior technology engineer. You can ...

- Find out how other companies are making technology work for their business,
- Get advice about how you can improve your own infrastructure.
- Discuss the latest compliance regulations and how they affect your operations.
- Bring your most pressing IT issues to the table and find out how iCorps can help.

To set up your personalized session, simply call us at (888) 642-6484 or visit www.icorps.com/stayup. You can also read how we've supported the technological initiatives of one of Massachusetts's oldest manufacturing companies in the case study that's enclosed.

iCorps is much more than an IT vendor; we're a partner in your success. Give us a call today to find out how we can put technology to work for your company.

Sincerely,

John Doe
Senior Sales Associate
